

Contributors

ALAIN BILLAULT is Emeritus Professor of Greek at Sorbonne Université, Paris. His main fields of research are the Greek novel and the Greek prose of the Roman period. He also works on Hellenistic poetry and ancient literary theory.

M. TERESA CLAVO SEBASTIÁN, Associate Professor of Classics at the University of Barcelona (Spain). She is co-editor of Pensament I Diàleg en scene (Itaca's monograph n.20, 2004) and Teatre grec: perspectives contemporànies (Barcelona 2007). She has published articles on Greek Literature, especially on Greek tragedy and its relationship with ancient novel, historiography and iconography.

Having studied Latin at Fort Collins High School in Colorado, EDWIN D. FLOYD turned to Greek at Yale University (B. A., 1958) and Princeton University (Ph. D., 1965), along with a year (1960-61) at the American School of Classical Studies at Athens. He taught for four years at the College of William and Mary (where he met his wife Mary B. Floyd), and then for 48 years at the University of Pittsburgh, retiring in 2014. His teaching and research has focused mainly on Homer, Sappho, and Pindar, with a particular emphasis on their maintenance of Indo-European poetic patterns. He has also written on Linear B and other linguistic topics.

VAYOS LIAPIS is Professor of Ancient Theatre and Its Reception at the Open University of Cyprus. He has published broadly in the areas of classical and modern Greek literature, theatre, and language. He has taught at Universities in Canada, Cyprus, France and Greece, and has been a Member of the Institute of Advanced Study (Princeton). His latest book is A Commentary on the Rhesus Attributed to Euripides (Oxford 2012). His latest co-edited books is Greek Tragedy after the Fifth Century (Cambridge University Press 2018) and Adapting Greek Tragedy (Cambridge University Press, forthcoming). He is the recipient of the 2018 National Prize for the Translation of Ancient Greek Literature into Modern Greek (Hellenic Ministry of Culture and Sports).

ILARIA MARCHESI is Professor of Classics and Comparative Literature at Hofstra University, where she directs the Classics program. In 2008, she published The Art of Pliny's Letters: A Poetics of Allusion in the Private Correspondence, a monography on the intertextuality in the letters of Pliny the Younger (Cambridge), for which she received a National Endowment for the Humanities Grant. She also edited and contributed to the book Pliny the Book-Maker: Betting on Posterity in the Epistles (Oxford 2015). Beside epistolography, her research interests include Latin satirical poetry and the ancient novel. She has published articles on Horace, Petronius, Martial, and on the reception of classical authors in Petrarch. In collaboration with Simone Marchesi, she has published Live in Pompeii, an essay in narrative form on the cultural value of the archeological past for the young generation (Garzanti 2016).

SILVIA MATTIACCI is associate professor of Latin Language and Literature at the University of Siena. She has published commented editions of the fragments of the poetae novelli (Rome 1982), Tiberianus (Florence 1990) and Apuleius (Metamorphoses IX, Florence 1996). She has studied Martial in connection with neoteric poetry (Pisa 2007), Phaedrus and the interactions between fable and epigram, the Latin epigram in late antiquity with particular reference to Ausonius and to the relationship between words and images. She is preparing a commentary on the seventh book of Apuleius' Metamorphoses, which will be published in the «Greek and Latin Writers» series of the Fondazione Lorenzo Valla.

SILVIA MONTIGLIO is the Gildersleeve Professor in Classics at Johns Hopkins University. She is the author of several books, among which Love and Providence: Recognition in the Ancient Novel (2013) and most recently, Musaeus, Hero and Leander: Introduction, Greek Text, Translation and Commentary (2020).

CECILIA NOBILI is Researcher in Greek Language and Literature at the University of Bergamo. She has published extensively on archaic Greek poetry (epic and lyric), local traditions, and the Greek Novel. Her most recent volume is Corone di gloria. Epigrammi agonistici ed epinici dal VII al IV sec. a.C. (Alessandria 2016).

MARIA PIA PATTONI, who completed her studies at the Scuola Normale Superiore in Pisa, is Full Professor of Ancient Greek Literature at the Catholic University of the Sacred Heart in Brescia. She is in the editorial board of the reviews Dionysus and Aevum antiquum. Her main interests are focused on Attic theater with a special consideration for tragedy, epic tradition, Aristotle's Poetic, Hellenistic poetry, ancient Greek novel. Among her publications there are: L'autenticità del 'Prometeo Incatenato' di Eschilo, Scuola Normale Superiore, Pisa 1987; Longo Sofista, Dafni e Cloe, Biblioteca Universale Rizzoli, Milano 2005; Euripide - Wieland - Rilke - Yourcenar - Raboni: Alceste. Variazioni sul mito, Marsilio, Venezia 2006. She is editor of the volumes Sacrifici al femminile: Alceste in scena da Euripide a Raboni, Comunicazioni sociali XXVI 2004, pp. 273-577; (with E. Medda and M.S. Mirto) Komodotragodia. Intersezioni del tragico e del comico nel teatro del V secolo a.C., Pisa 2006), Prometeo: percorsi di un mito tra antichi e moderni, Aevum antiquum n.s. XII-XIII, 2012-2013, pp. 1-700, Milano 2015.

AARA SUKSI is an Associate Professor of Classics at the University of Western Ontario, and Associate Director of the School for Advanced Studies in Arts and Humanities. She teaches and publishes in the field of Greek literature and culture.